BREAKFAST BITES.

A funny way to make money—write jokes.

Beauty's newest night-dress fastens at the side.

No man is accountable for the mistakes of his friends.

A few men have had the courage to appear in straw hats.

Don't lose sight of an honorable enemy; he'll make a good friend.

For cleaning piano keys the best thing is a soft rag dipped in alcohol.

No one has ever attempted to hold an elephant's trunk over an unpolished board.

A man loses his self-respect when the last button pops off the back of his trousers.

It is a rather singular fact that the only place a shoe pinches is just over the corn.

The spring hat of the ladies seems to consist principally of a quantity of holes strung on a wire frame.

Adam and Eve had the earth at one time. Their experience should be a warning to those people who want to die.

"Straws tell how the wind blows," but a man does not fully realize it until he begins to wear a straw hat. —New York Herald.

A good many people think that there ought to be more fasting and praying, but they want somebody else to do it. —Ham's Horn.

It was getting on toward midnight. She covers her yawns with her hands. He said, "Sitting Home Again." It always carries me away." She answers sweetly: "O, certainly. If that's the case," in five minutes she had him out and the door closed.

According to Henry, Officer Ashman of Cleveland, Ohio, there are indications that the grip will be followed by many cases of cerebro-spinal meningitis, which is sometimes called "spotted fever." There have been at least a dozen deaths from the disease recently in Cleveland, and Dr. Ashman finds that the grip is the primary cause of all of them. "The disease, which attacks the membranes of the brain, soon throws the patient into horrible convulsions."

The girls in the Central Telephone Exchange of Detroit are in a frame of mind over the new rules of the company, which prohibit the chewing of gum during working hours. Interdicted flirtations, conversations over the wire, and require them to say "Summer" instead of "Hello." The day girls, who get $10 per month, are willing to strike, but they are not organized, and fear that their chances of success would be very small. The night girls, who get $20 per month, have more time to themselves, but, owing to the nature of their work, cannot talk to the matter of striking during working hours, and neither will trust the other to organize a union. The girls are mad, however, and have been muttering over the new rules ever since they went into effect. Life without the soul-satisfying chewing-gum is a bore.

Pronounced Hopeless.

From a letter written by Mrs. Ada E. Hurd, of Groton, S. D., we quote: "Was taken with a bad cold, which settled on my lungs, cough set in and finally settled in consumption. Four doctors gave me up saying, I could live but a short time. I gave myself up for a hopeless case. My friends on earth, I would not stay my friends above. My husband was advised to get Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption, coughs and colds. I gave it a trial, took it in all eight bottles, and my cough, cold and consumption were cured. I am now a well and hearty woman." Trial bottles free at W. S. Lloyd's drug store, regular size, 50 cents and $1 per bottle.

One of our physicians recently received the following letter from a country physician: "Dear doc I have a patient whose phlegm shines about the head like a waterfall. I feel his stomach to be gone. I have given him everything without effect, his father is wealthy, energetic and influential, he is an active member of the church and God alone I don't want to be a humbug, what else I die, and my return mail, yours in need." —Birkhead Review.

FACTS ABOUT OSTRICHES.

Daniel Webster and His Schoolmaster.

Hon. L. E. Chittenden in his "Recollections of Abraham Lincoln," publishes some curious statements in regard to ostriches. He says that so far from deserting her nest and leaving her eggs to hatch in the sun, as was at one time the common belief, the hen is quite aware of the fact that the sun's untimely heat would be injurious to them, the last morning, therefore, when she leaves her eggs as usual for a quarter of an hour, she first places on the top of each a good pinch of sand. This she does in order that the germ—whichever side of the egg is uppermost, always rises to the highest point, to be shaded and protected. It is at this time that the white-necked crow finds his chance for a meal. Unable to break the hard shell of an ostrich egg with his bill, he carefully watches till the parent's back is turned and she is a good distance from the nest; then, flying up into the air, he drops a stone from a great height with a most accurate aim, and breaks an egg. In the same manner, it may be added, the crow kills for food the tortoise, numbers of broken shells, some of immense size, being found about the veldt.

During incubation the male is very savage and it is impossible to work about the camps without a "tackey," a long and stout branch of mimosa with the thorns left on at one end. This is thrust into his face as he is about to charge, so bewildering him that to escape he says, "Fortunately, you are never so easily scared as one would suppose at a time; for in the large camp of some two thousand acres each—which the birds are not feared of in pairs, but live almost in the freedom of wild creatures—each one has his own domain, separated from those of the others by some imaginary boundary line of his own, visible only to himself, but as clearly marked out as the beat of a London policeman." The young birds are plucked for the first time when nine months old, but the feathers do not attain their full growth until the first year. The birds are of twelve thousand acres—the birds are "rounded" up for plucking much as cattle on a ranch, the feathers being cut two or three months before they are ripe, to prevent the tips from being spoiled. The age which an ostrich is of is uncertain, "for, however old the bird, they never show any signs of decrepitude, nor do their feathers deteriorate." Death is almost always the result of an accident, most frequently from a broken leg. "The bones become almost as brittle as porcelain; and a comparatively slight fall is enough to break them. It is as if such jagged and pointed fragments as result from breaking the spout of a china tea-pot."

HO, Scotch Tiddly Winks is the latest modification of the now well-known game of Tiddly Winks. The game is played with ivory, which upon a flat matting, marked in the plan of a Hop Scotch Court. The chip, or as the English say, the "Pudding," is placed at the curved end of the court. The game is very simple, but fascinating in the extreme. It has great advantages which no other game which we can really call to mind has. It is suited for one or a dozen players. It can be used as a solitary game, and it is especially pleasing to progressive parties. It does not interfere with conversation while being played, and is enjoyed as much by middle aged people as by children of a few years of age. People who consider the ordinary game of Tiddly Winks stupid are delighted with the Hop Scotch idea, there being, to use a common expression, "more to it."

A Baffled Miser.

A miser having lost a hundred pounds, promised ten pounds reward to any one who should bring it to him.

An honest poor man, who found it, brought it to the old gentleman, demanding the ten pounds. But the miser, to baffle him, alleged that there were a hundred and ten pounds in the bag when lost.

The poor man was advised to sue for the money; and when the case came on to be tried, it appearing that the seal had not been broken or the bag ripped, the judge said to the defendant's counsel—

"The bag you lost had one hundred and ten pounds in it, you say?"

"Yes, my lord," he replied.

"Then," said the judge, "according to the evidence given in court, this bag of money cannot be your property, for inside there were but a hundred pounds. Therefore, the plaintiff must keep it till the true owner appears and proves his claim." —"Ex

When the procession had passed, and the last of the innumerable "God bless him!" had died away, without breaking the silence which he had maintained for an hour, Mr. Lincoln turned from the window and walked slowly back toward the well-known little room in which he had received so many visitors, followed by those who with him had witnessed the procession. When the President entered the room, his face wore that look of momentary so habitual to it; so different from that of any other human being.

Suddenly he stopped and turned about. In an instant the whole aspect of the man had changed; the melancholy look had disappeared, and his sad eyes sparkled with humor. Without addressing anyone in particular, he said:

"Did you ever hear the story of Daniel Webster and the schoolmaster?"

No one answered. "Well," he said, "this is the story: Daniel was a very careless, some called him a dirty boy. His teacher had many times reproved him for not washing his hands. He had covered and soiled them, but it was useless; Daniel would come to school with dirty hands. Out of all patience with him, one day he called Daniel to his desk, made him hold up his hands in the presence of the whole school, and solemnly warned him that if he ever came to school again with his hands in that condition he would give him a flogging that he would remember."

Daniel promised better behavior, and for two or three days there was great improvement in his appearance. His hands looked as if they were washed daily. But the reformation was not permanent. In a few days his hands were as dirty as ever. The teacher's sharp eyes detected them, and as soon as school had opened for the day, with a stern voice he said, "Daniel, come here; the guilty culprit knew what was coming. His palms were beginning to tingle in anticipation. He steadily brought the palm of his right hand into contact with his tongue, and as he walked slowly toward the master's desk, rubbed the same upon his pantaloons, in the effort to remove some of the dirt. "Hold out your hand, sir!" said the teacher, who had extended his right hand, palm upward. "Do you call that a clean hand?" demanded the teacher. "Not very, sir," modestly replied the offender. "I should think not very," said the master, I promised you a flogging, but if you will show me a dirtier hand in this school, I will let you off for this time. "There it is, sir," exclaimed Daniel, quickly extending his left hand, which had not undergone the summary cleansing of the right."

Mr. Lincoln seldom laughed at his own stories, but usually left his auditors, for whose benefit they were intended, to enjoy them. But the quickness with which the school-boy had seized upon the weak point in the master's offer, seemed to touch his keen sense of humor, and at the conclusion of the story he laughed as heartily as any one present. The story was a good one, but what there had been in the procession just witnessed to bring it to the President's mind was difficult to discover.

He Wanted His Wife.

The other evening in the foyer of the Auditorium a pompous gentleman from some interior city, went out before the acts of "The Scoldan," to "see a man," and remaining a few moments on entering found the act on and the house in semi-darkness. In and out the different sections he wandered across the lobby and up to the first balcony, returning he addressed Anson Temple as follows: "Say, Mr. I've got a wife sitting here in the act of 'The Scoldan' and I want to find her. I walked more or five miles and now you just tell me where I want to go or how long before you're going to turn them lights on." —"Ex

Good Looks.

Good looks are more than skin deep depending upon a healthy condition of all the vital organs. If the liver be inactive, you have a bilious look; if your stomach be disordered, you have a dyspeptic look; and if your kidneys be affected, you have a pinched look. Secure good health and you will have good looks. Enoch's Bitters is the great alterative and tonic and acts directly on these vital organs. Cures piles, blotches, boils and gives a rosy complexion. Sold at W. S. Lloyd's drug store, 50c. per bottle.

They tell us that Miss. Batschky will shortly return to life. Why not? She will be welcome. She was a great cigarette smoker, and always managed to secure the very finest of Latakia tobacco, which costs from $2.00 a pound, and 50c. a tin of Batschky's Bitters is the best alterative and tonic and acts directly on these vital organs. Cures piles, blotches, boils and gives a rosy complexion. Sold at W. S. Lloyd's drug store, 50c. per bottle.

"I thought I told you I wouldn't be responsible for any more bills," Batschky said, "but, father, I had these 'Batschky's Bitters' on the old bill!" —"Life.

Belle—"I could see, that you suffered terribly at parting with your lover." Batschky—"That I did! The next time he got me to eat clam chowder he'll know it!" —"New York Sun.

First Assistant Postmaster General Whitfield is authority for the statement that the oldest postmaster in the country in point of service is Russell Beardsley, who was appointed postmaster at North Lanting, Hampshire county, N. H., on June 28, 1788, and still holds the office. The mystery in the case is how Charles Beardsley overtook the old man.

THE ADVOCATE.

Kitchen Etymology.

The study of the origins of words brings to light many odd and unexpected relationships. The word "kitchen," for example, bears little superficial resemblance to the word "cook," yet the two are from the same root, the Latin coquere, to cook. Other derivatives from the same source are "cake" and "cuisine" (the latter a thing twice cooked), "concoct," to cook together, and "precocious," which means, literally, cooked or ripened before the time.

The word "toast" from the Anglo-Saxon toetan, to burn, as we may say, "to toast a piece of bread," is a mixture of milk and eggs, sweetened, and then baked or boiled. It may be cooked with or without pastry, but is sharply distinguished from it. Yet the word "custard" is from the same root as "toast" and originally meant a crust or a pastry.

How curiously terms take on a new significance is exemplified by the word "custard." In these days a custard is a mixture of milk and eggs, sweetened, and then baked or boiled. It may be cooked with or without pastry, but is sharply distinguished from it. Yet the word "custard" is from the same root as "toast" and originally meant a crust or a pastry.

The connection of the word "salutary" with "salt" is a matter of general knowledge, but it is not so commonly known that "sauce," "sausage," and "sausage" have the same origin, the idea of salting of seasoning having been foremost in them all.

When the ordinary reader looks in Skech's "Etymological Dictionary" for the word "sage," he is most likely surprised to read, "Sage, a plant; see salvation." What possible connection can there be between this familiar condiment, and a condition of safety? But the answer is easy. The ordinary logic was supposed to have a healing virtue, and, therefore, was named "sage," a term derived from the Latin salvus, safe.

If we go to the same dictionary for the word "steak," we read, "Steak; see steak." A steak was a slice of meat stuck on a wooden peg, and roasted before the fire. We have changed the custom, but retained the word. It is worth noting, also, that "steakette," "steak," "steaking," "steaker," and "steak" have come from the same root.

A "chap" is nothing but a "chap" or a "chip"; a "tunicheon" is a "turne," a piece broken off; a "stew" is something cooked on a "stove" and a "pudding" from "pad," a bag—was originally an intestine filled with meat, in other words, a sausage.—Youth's Companion.

A Word to Grumblers.

Don't be a grumbler. Some people contrive to get hold of the prickly side of everything, to run against all the corners and disagreeable things. Half the strength spent in growling would often set things right. You may as well make up your mind, to begin with, that you are ever found the world quite as he would like it; but you are to take your part of the trouble and bear it bravely. You will be sure to have luckless laid upon you that belong to other people, unless you are a slinker yourself; but don't grumble. If the work needs doing, and you can do it, never mind about the other who ought to have done it and didn't. Those workers who fill up the gaps and smooth away the rough spots, and finish up the jobs that others leave undone—they are the true peacemakers, and worth a whole regiment of growlers.

Let every thing dark melt away before a sunny nature. If you go to a home for a social visit, be merry, be easy of manner, ready to join in what has been prepared for you. Learn the great art of adapting yourself to your surroundings. Don't forever expect your friends to accompany you, or your friends to accompany you, or your friends to accompany you.

A Low ground. Scold by yourself, though you have the special care of your household. First you do scold, then you scold her or her family to come and wait upon you. Enter into the family circle, be "one of them" in spirit, so that, when after a hearty hand-shake at the station, it may be said of you: "What a pleasure she has been!" How easy to entertain!—[The Ladies' Home Journal.]

A story is told of a woman on the witness stand in a French court. She was asked her age, and answered that she was thirty years old. "But," said the magistrate, "did you not tell me that you were thirty two years ago?" "I think it very likely," she replied, "acknowledging her father, mother, and not at all abashed. 'I am not one of those women who say one thing to-day and another thing to-morrow.'"

The bee and the serpent often suck at the self-same flower, but the food undergoes in them a great change; for the flower becomes poison in the beak of the serpent, while in the beak of the bee it is liquid.—Metaphor.

"First--The Democracy of Kentucky declare their unflinching devotion to the principles of public policy which make the party assembling them the national in purpose and as popular in spirit as it was when founded by Jefferson.

"Second--We congratulate the country that the election of the past year give abundant promise of the overthrow of the Republican party and the final and complete restoration to the people of the control of the Federal Government.

"Third--We insist that tariff reform is the paramount issue before the American people and denounce the McKinley bill as the most outrageous measure of taxation ever proposed in the American Congress. It has increased the burdens already too great upon the necessities of life and reduced taxes on luxuries that are most able to bear them. It has made existence harder for every farmer and wage-earner in the land, in order that the profits of the monopolies and trusts may be increased. It robs the man to enrich the few, and does not open a market for a single bushel of wheat or a single barrel of pork. In contrast with the policy of Grover Cleveland and John G. Carlisle would discourage unnecessary expenditures, provide and secure revenue, and demand what we buy and open the markets of the world to the products of our farms and factories."

"Fourth--Recognizing the fact that the United States is the greatest silver producing country in the world, and that both gold and silver were used in the money of the Constitution from the beginning of the republic until the hostile and fraudulent legislation of the Republican party against silver, which utterly contracted the circulating medium of the country, and feeling that the great interest of the people demand more money for use in the channels of trade and commerce, we tender our gratitude to the Democrats in the last Congress for their almost unanimous vote in both houses of Congress, for free coinage of silver, and demand its restoration to the position of equality before the law given to it by our fathers."

"Fifth--We present for the consideration of the people of the land the issue of a local self-government, which, by its restriction of profane and ruinous expenditure of public money, has in two years squandered the surplus of more than a hundred million dollars in the Federal Treasury by a Democratic administration, whilst it has increased in the most unexampled and unprecedented manner taxation that will add to the distress of the people, and at the same time be inadequate to meet the demands of those who are using the Government to serve their selfish purposes."

"Sixth--We return thanks to the patriotic members of the last Senate of the United States who defeated the unjust, inhuman and partisan measure known as the Force bill, which would have been a fearful blow to the people of the South, and was intended to place in the hands of the Republican party the machinery whereby it might by force, fraud and intimidation have perverted its illegitimate rule and destroyed the freedom and integrity of the ballot."

"Seventh--We commend to the people of the State the patriotic, patriotic and upright course of the Chief Executive who the Democratic party gave to the Commonwealth four years ago, and whose administration is consistent with the principles of the Constitution and the people."

"Immediately after the adoption of the report of the Committee on Resolutions, the Convention proceeded to take a final ballot for Governor. This ballot stood: Brown, 177; Clay, 194; Hendrick, 190; Harrison, 194. The final continued till the eleventh ballot, when Dr. Clark's name was withdrawn. Upon the conclusion of the twelfth ballot Hendrick withdrew from the race, and in a manly speech urged his friends to lay aside all thoughts of bitterness and go to work to make a nomination as if he had never been in the contest. The thirteenth ballot was between Brown and Clay, and before it was ended the proposition was made to make the nomination of Mr. Brown unanimous. Mr. C. Afford was nominated for Lieutenant-Governor by acclamation. In the contest for Attorney-General, there were four candidates. Mr. Wilbur F. Browder, of Russellville, nominated J. S. Rhea; Marc D. Gray, of Williamsburg, placed the name of W. L. Ellison before the convention. Ex-Governor McCrory placed George G. Gilbert in nomination, and Judge Alva Humphrey, of Louisville, named W. J. Hendrick. The first ballot standing: Rhea, 103; Hendrick, 103; Gilbert, 215; Hendrick, 215. The second ballot Rhea's name was withdrawn, and before the call these two to carry him in winner. The convention adjourned till Saturday morning at 9:30 o'clock.

Upon the assembling of the Convention on Saturday morning, nominations for Auditor were made. A. L. Peterman, of Monroe, naming Capt. Jas. Blackburn. Hon. W. H. Mackey, of Kenton, nominating L. C. Norman. R. C. Warren was placed in nomination by J. D. Black. Wallace McKay named Charles S. Green. Upon the first ballot, Col. L. C. Norman received 515 votes, more than a hundred votes over all competitors. Maj. H. H. Hale, candidate for Treasurer, was nominated by acclamation.

In the race for Register of the Land Office came the fight of the Convention. There were four candidates, T. H. Corbett, J. A. Grant, T. B. Bullock, G. B. Swango. Sam. J. Salter made a magnificent speech in nominating Hugh Swango. His many friends from this section, who had the pleasure of hearing him, came home, very enthusiastic in their praise of his effort. Upon the second ballot, the names of Grant and Bullock were withdrawn and the field was left to Swango and Corbett. In the call of the ballot there was such an amount of confusion that it was impossible for the Secretary to keep correct record for a while, and a pause in the proceedings was necessary.

Stanford, 2:11, the great son of Sultan, 2:24, is 15 hands, 24 inches high, and is as handsome as a thoroughbred.

Alva Bell, sister to Bell Boy, St. Bel, Chambers, etc., has been bred to St. Louis, 2:11, and will be trained for a fast mark this year.

The demand for Nutwood's got out of the choice mares at Highland Farm is on the increase, one of the latest sale being the five-week-old chestnut colt, Lillian, by Nutwood, out of Alcantara's daughter Alpha, to John E. Owens, Parkersburg, Pa., for $7,500.

John Goldsmith expects to put five of the best of his mares, 2:15, in the 2:30 list this season. As his oldest colts are but three years old this spring, if he succeeds in doing this he will place his mares far ahead of any other horse as a sire of early speed.

The report comes from California that the filly, Rowena, by Azmoor, 2:24, dam thoroughbred, will be sent against Freedom's young record of 2:25.

It will be remembered that Azmoor's dam is thoroughbred and if a filly bred in such lines as Rowena should secure the yearling record, there would be many converts to the "thoroughbred blood in the trotter" theory.

The gray mare Soomara by Electioneer, dam Soutag Mohawk, took a record of 2:28 at San Francisco last Saturday. This gives Soutag Mohawk six trotters better than 2:30 and ranks her second only to the great mare Green Mountain Maid. It is probable that her record will be broken by Soutag Mohawk will have one, and possibly two others in the list. As she is now but sixteen years of age she gives promise of proving one of the greatest of all brood mares.

Last season on the turf was in some respects disappointing to those who looked for record-breaking. The stallions did their part in reducing the record for aged and four-year-olds, and beating the previous best yearling record, but the mares and geldings which were expected to beat the time of 2:30 and 2:30 lists and many trotters earned records in that time in previous years. But when conservative men look for something better this year in the way of equaling or approaching the record of the queen, as never before were there so many trotters with such apparent good prospects of going fast as at present.

The correspondent of the Breeder and sportsman writing from Santa Rosa, tells a clever story on an enthusiastic horseman up that way. He has a mare that dropped a colt the twenty-fourth of December. He had been lying awake nights and praying that the colt would not make its appearance until after the first of the year, but his prayers were of no avail. When the help came, he shut the mare in his barn, thinking to keep its advent from the knowledge of the outside world. But the mare grew fidgety, kicked the door open on the thirtieth, and the help got into the yard. A neighbor's dog got glimpse of it, and while our enthusiastic horseman was relating to a coterie of friends that he expected his mare to drop a colt in a few days, a small boy ran up to him and said: "Say, mister, your colt has broken out into the yard." The enthusiastic horseman hurried home almost too full for utterance, but it is said that he managed to articulate a few forcible quotations from the good book, when he realized that his little mare had dropped a colt, that he very appropriately said: "Little Too Soon."

The shipment of gold from this country to Europe seems rather to be on the increase than to show any signs of abatement. The financial experts are at sea as to the cause of this steady flow of gold away from shores nor indeed can they guess how seriously it will affect our finances.

Our teacher, Miss Llewellyn Cloud, will take in the excursion to Old Point Comfort. Her pupils, Miss Ida Paul and Minnie Snowden, will accompany her, and Mrs. L. B. Cockrell will chaperone the party.

The extreme dry weather is playing havoc with our farmers, they having planted only about half a crop. Some farmers are not through breaking ground yet. The corn that has been planted is growing very little. Grass is suffering very much; the frosts and dry weather have almost entirely destroyed our prospect for fruit; the outlook for the tobacco men is certainly gloomy; plants are doing badly, and the ground is so dry that it cannot be put in condition for planting. We advise those having old crops not to be too big a hurry about selling, as this long drought will certainly enhance the value of the last year's crop.

The reports that come to us from this section say that the farmers are making extensive preparations for a large crop. All growing crops are promising a large yield, whilst prices for grain are ruling very high. Cattle are also being bought for summer delivery at good round prices, with a prospect that they will go still higher. Tobacco, all things considered, is doing better than for two years past. In fact it begins to look as if the farmer's time had come to get back some of the losses he has been sustaining in the last few years.

T. G. Julian, the druggist, desires to publish the following testimonial, that he has the remedy and believe it to be reliable:

I bought a 50 cent bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm and applied it to my limbs, which have been afflicted with rheumatism at intervals for one year. At one time I bought the Pain Balm I was unable to walk. I can truthfully say that Pain Balm has completely cured me. R. H. Fann, Hollywood, Kan. Mr. A. B. Cox, the leading druggist at Hollywood, vouches for the truth of the above statement.

The Cardiff Coal and Iron Company, of East Tennessee, a Boston real estate boom enterprise, has been attached and enjoined by a purchaser of lots, upon the ground of insolvency and fraud.

THE ADVOCATE.

of a Public Conveyance

For left one of the railroads having its usual quota of passengers; among the rest, an elderly man and a middle-aged daughter. The daughter had a voice that was clear, high, and penetrating. She pronounced her g's and said "you," not "ye." Before leaving the station her voice had become a familiar sound to all the passengers—so familiar that they had ceased to notice it as it resounded there. With the greatest indifference, she used names of persons and places, told incidents with minute details; she exercised no more restraint in her conversation than if she were in her own house, with every door closed. Family history, criticisms of friends and relatives were made, and repeated with calmness; and most appalling, she repeated the criticisms of various people who were members of two prominent churches in their respective towns. Every time the train stopped, the voice went on, with its tone of self-satisfaction in rehearsing things of good and evil report; to the edification or annoyance of her fellow-travelers.

Sometimes such bad manners receive swift and sure retribution. A number of women were together in a railroad train going to a convention held out of town; among the rest, a woman who had just been put into a position which, by the use of discretion and good judgment, she could have made very valuable to herself, and through it might have opened a new avenue of employment to women. It was an ordinary car, and at the request of one of these a seat was reserved that this party of four might be closer together. The train was an express, and to be heard in continuous conversation the voice must be raised above the conversational tone. On the opposite side of the car was a lady traveling alone. She heard the name of a friend used by one of the party across the aisle, and became interested unconsciously. During a journey of an hour the business of the office employing the talkative women was freely told, the proposals of the woman made to increase the business, the words of caution to the men of the firm—already successful—were repeated, and the judgment of her traveling companions on their wisdom asked. She gave an analysis of the character and abilities of the members of the firm, and doubtless left the impression, which evidently was her own, that now a failing business would be saved through her ability.

The friend of the members of the firm called, as soon as she retired, on that member, and told him the conversation she had overheard. The unwise and indiscreet employee was called into the private office of the firm, and notified that she was at liberty to find her another situation; her salary would be paid for one month. It was a shock to the woman, and when asked for a reason it was given her, with the advice that she be more careful in choosing her subjects of conversation in the future in public.

The presence of strangers should make all conversation so impersonal that the traveling public may be spared the necessity of being partners to the secrets in the possession of friends, nor forced to know the standards or estimate of those in whom they have no personal interest. Self-unconsciousness is a desirable quality when absorbed in a work, but it is an undesirable quality when good taste and good judgment demand present and full consciousness of one's environment.—(Christian Union).

Some Things that Deter Woman From Marriage.

There are three general causes which bring marriage into disfavor (with women): philanthropy, higher education and self-analysis. The first has been a powerful factor in its subtle influence against marriage. The mental atmosphere is permeated with the idea of responsibility for another's happiness. Woman now feels herself accountable for the welfare of the whole, and through the exercise of that responsibility has found occupation for mind and heart; which has prevented absorption in her own affairs. Higher culture, in marriage, has been a powerful factor in its subtle influence against marriage. The mental atmosphere is permeated with the idea of responsibility for another's happiness. Woman now feels herself accountable for the welfare of the whole, and through the exercise of that responsibility has found occupation for mind and heart; which has prevented absorption in her own affairs. Articles of Incorporation

—OF THE—

Sideview Alliance Building and Improvement Company.

Be it known to all men that the undersigned, L. B. Green, G. M. Roberts, Judson McDaniel, have associated themselves together as incorporators and for themselves, their associates and successors, have formed a corporation under Chapter 56 of the General Statutes of Kentucky, which corporation shall be known as the Sideview Alliance Building and Improvement Company, and by that name shall have perpetual succession, may sue and be sued; may have a common seal and alter the same at pleasure; may make contracts and transfer of property possessing the same powers in such respects as private individuals now enjoy; may establish by-laws and make all rules and regulations deemed expedient for the management of the affairs of said corporation, not inconsistent with constitution and laws of this State or of the United States.

Art. 2. The said corporation's principal place of business shall be at Sideview, Ky.

Art. 3. The general nature of the business of the corporation shall be the buying and selling of real estate, contracting and building.

Art. 4. The amount of capital stock of said corporation authorized is Twenty-five Thousand Dollars ($25,000), divided into shares of One Hundred Dollars ($100) each, which shall be paid for in cash at such times as the Board of Directors may require, but the said amount may be increased to Fifty Thousand Dollars, ($50,000), by a majority of all the stockholders.

Art. 5. Said corporation may commence business when Three Thousand Dollars ($3,000), of the prescribed stock has been subscribed.

Art. 6. The business of said corporation shall be managed by a Board of Directors, composed of not less than five (5) stockholders, of whom a majority shall constitute a quorum in the absence of a by-law to that effect. Said Directors shall be elected annually on the first Saturday in January; provided, however, that the incorporators named in Section 1, shall serve as such Board until their successors are elected and enter upon the discharge of their duties.

Art. 7. The highest amount of indebtedness or liability to which said corporation may at any time subject itself shall not exceed the actual amount of capital paid in.

Art. 8. The shares of stock of said corporation shall be transferable only on the books of the Company, but a written assignment on the back of the certificate by the owner shall be binding as between individuals.

Art. 9. The private property of stockholders shall be exempt from all liabilities for corporate debts.

Art. 10. The Board of Directors shall elect from its members a President, a Vice-President, a Secretary and Treasurer, and may employ such agents and assistants as may be necessary to conduct the business of said Company.

Art. 11. Deeds of conveyance and transfers of real corporation of stock shall be executed by the President and in his absence by the Vice-President.

Art. 12. Said corporation shall begin business on the 26th day of November, 1890, and terminate in twenty-five years.

AMENDMENT TO ARTICLES OF INCORPORATION OF THE SIDEVIEW ALLIANCE BUILDING AND IMPROVEMENT COMPANY.

Whereas, at a meeting of the officers and Board of Directors of the Sideview Alliance Building and Improvement Company, held at Sideview, Montgomery County, Ky., on the 25th day of April, 1891, a majority of the officers and Directors being present, it was ordered that the charter of said Company be amended, as to change the par value of the shares of stock from $100 to $5, and to allow said corporation to begin business when Five Hundred Dollars, ($500) of the prescribed stock shall have been taken; and whereas, at said meeting aforesaid, B. F. Mark was authorized and empowered to have said charter so amended; now, therefore, know all men that said "The Sideview Alliance Building and Improvement Company," this April 25, 1891, by and through said B. F. Mark, amends its charter, which is duly recorded in County Clerk's office of Montgomery county, by striking out

In Art. 4, the words "of one hundred dollars ($100)," thereby making said Art. 4, read as follows: "The amount of capital stock of said corporation authorized, is twenty-five thousand dollars, divided into shares of five dollars each, which shall be paid for in cash at such times as the Board of Directors may require, but the said amount may be increased to fifty thousand dollars by a majority vote of all the stock issued;" also by striking out in Art. 5 the words "three thousand," and inserting in its place "five hundred," thereby making said Art. 5 read as follows: "Said corporation may commence business when five hundred dollars of the prescribed has been subscribed."

In testimony whereof, witness said B. F. Mark's hand and the day and date,

B. F. MARK.

Barometric Plants.

The Petit Taité de Meteorologie

Agriculture, by Mr. Caus, contains a list of prognostics apropos of the aspect that certain plants present according to the state of the atmosphere. The following are a few examples: If the head of the gith (Nigella arvensis) droops, it will be warm; if the head of the same plant stands upright, it will be cool; if the stalks of clover and other leguminous plants stands upright, there will be rain; if the stalks of the wood-sorrel turns up, it is a sign of a storm; if the leaf of the whitlow grass slowly bends up, there will be a storm; if the flower of the convolvulus closes, it will rain; if the flower of the imperial closes, it will rain; if the flower of the hibernica closes, it will rain; if the flower of the sorrel opens, it will be fine weather; if the flower of the same plant closes, it will rain; if the flowers of the carnation thistle close, there will be a storm; if the flower of the lettuce expands, it will rain; if the flower of the small bindweed closes, look out for rain; if the flower of the pitcher plant turns upside down it will rain; but if it stands erect, it will be fine weather; if the flower of the cinquefoil expands, there will be rain; but if it closes, the weather will be fair; if the flowers of the African margold close, it will rain; if the scale of the teal become close pressed against each other, it will rain.—(Scientific American).

The interest in the study of phisic phenomena seems to be on the increase here in Boston, judging from the formation of another society for their investigation, but the statement on the prospectus that its efforts are to be concentrated on the narrower field of spiritualism, pure and simple, apparently indicates a greater confidence in the results to be obtained from delving in it than experience would seem to justify. The trouble is that many investigators of the alleged phenomena of mediums and materialization, state writing, mind reading, etc., are misled by the skill of the "operators," and their credulity often stands in the way of their exposure to frauds. And the so-called "tests" applied to these phenomena do not shake the faith of persons inclined to believe in them, even though there is abundant reason for such a result. Such "investigations" are worse than useless.—(Boston Post).

The reports from all over Illinois show the condition of winter wheat to be more promising than at this date of any year since 1880, being six points above the normal.

Won in the First Heat!

We've started in the race for trade and, thanks to the people of Montgomery and surrounding counties, we are already in the lead.

Ahead in low prices.
Ahead in good qualities.
Ahead in amount of sales.

Just think, where else could you buy a fine all-wool Cassimere, Worsted or Cheviot suit made in the latest style for the small sum of $9.40?

We've Got Them and We're Selling Them, too.

Have you seen our fine imported Suits which we are selling at $10, 11, 12.50, 14, 15, 16.50 and 18? We don't be surprised if others will ask you about 50 per cent. more on each Suit! Come and look at them. Looking is free.

Hats! Straw and Fur!

Have just received the latest styles of straw and fur hats. Look at our 2pc. Straw hats! They are big bargains. The latest style of square and round crowned furs just received.

Underwear, Ties, Shirts, Etc.

Come and look. You can't help buying.

REMEMBER

That tickets for Robinson's circus go free with every $10 purchase. Every purchaser of a child's suit receives a free circus ticket.

A Child Killed.

Another child killed by the use of opiate given in the form of Sootling Syrup. Why mothers give their children such deadly poison is surprising when they can relieve the child of its peculiar troubles by using Dr. Acker's Baby Soother. It contains no opium or morphia. Sold by T. G. Julian, drugist.

ERS' HOUSE."

W. T. JONES, of Henry County, Manager. HARRY SNOOK, of Shelby County, Asst. Manager
Capt. R. A. Tracy, Solicitor.

IS IT WORTH SAYING? It will cost you to sell at any old Warehouse in Louisville a hhd. of tobacco, supposing the hhd. to net $10, as follows: Warehouse charges $2.00; Commission $1.00; 10 lbs. Sample $1.00, — $4.00. It will cost you to sell 10 hhd. at the same rate, $40.00. It will cost you to sell at the GROWERS' HOUSE, the same tobacco; one hhd., $1.00; no deduction for sample; no commission; 10 hhd., $10.00. Showing a difference in favor of the GROWERS' HOUSE of $35.00. If you are in the tobacco business for money, and consider this little sum saving in the sale of ten hhd. of tobacco, ship to the GROWERS' HOUSE.
